"I always tell members that the more effort we put in to the JC movement, the more friendship, experience and value we will get."

2013 PRESIDENT Pauline Lau

It is my great honor to be the 2013 President of my beloved Chapter. I am proud to have ONE team of energetic, capable and professional Board Members to walk the JC journey with me. With our slogan "We Bond We Unite", we aim at achieving the goals and dreams of providing the best platform for young ladies to develop themselves - one that facilitates the seeking of opportunities, taking of challenges and exploration of potentials!

A quarter has passed, how do we evaluate our progress? As a Chapter President, I have led the Board of Directors to serve the Chapter by delivering our promises and honoring our commitments. Members of the Board of Directors have been learning from each other and at the same time, we have been learning a lot from past presidents and senior members of JCIHK. We went through ups and downs by facing difficult times and enjoying happy moments together. Members asked... Is it easy? No, it is not easy. When you see a list of 40 items for you to manage and 40 phone calls to make, it is not at all easy, but this is exactly what it meant the most to be a Jayceette - an unusual eye-opening experience and a fast track journey to achieve far more than you could have imagined or it could have taken years for you to experience and to achieve the same elsewhere!

I always tell members that the more effort we put in to the JC movement, the more friendship, experience and value we will get. JCI has its uniqueness and it is very different from other non-profit organizations. On the one hand and most of the time, agenda, minutes, protocols, etc. drive us crazy. And on the other hand, experienced members shared with us that many of those things that we learn through JC are in fact useful in their personal and work life. I am looking forward to seeing positive changes in our members and I really hope that the experience they gained can be fully utilized when needed.

The power of ONE makes everything possible. This not only helps the Board of Directors to lead and serve the Chapter, but also facilitates Jayceettes to host the 48th National Convention of JCIHK in 2013. It is an important milestone of JCI Hong Kong Jayceettes and it certainly boosts up the spirit and excitement!

I hope that you will enjoy our Snapshots and feel the spirit of We Bond We Unite

We are one Jaycee

Junior Chamber International (JCI) is an international organization overtly espouses the importance of Active Citizenship.

JCI Hong Kong Jayceettes, one of the three female chapters in Hong Kong, has been striving to achieve active citizenship with active participation and involvement in serving our community. Every year, we are honored and happy to participate in their UNMDG projects series.

This year, "Care & Dare" is the theme of this flagship projects and moreover, JCIHK National Convention will be hosted by the Jayceettes. We are also happy to see the new board of directors join and get involved in JCI local chapter management

As a partner with United Nation (UN), we work closely in the United Nations Millennium Development Goals (UNMDG) projects to create a better world.

Be Better is our goal on member development path. Together with 200,000 members in 5,000 local chapters in 117 national bodies, we have had a global network to create impact.

It also responds to UNMDG eight goals covering the world's main challenges. We believe JCI Hong Kong Jayceettes will work closely with JCI Hong Kong for the goals to provide sustainable solutions to global challenges including poverty and hunger, universal primary education, gender equality, reduce child mortality, improve maternal health, combat HIV/AIDS, ensure environmental sustainability and develop a global partnership for development.

In 2013, I wish JCI Hong Kong Jayceettes to have a fruitful year. Under the leadership of President Pauline Lau and her energetic team of Board members, I wish a great success in JCI movement.

Paul Wu
NATIONAL PRESIDENT

Junior Chamber International Hong Kong

Using "Hong Kong Spirit" as the theme of this Snapshots match exactly what JCI Hong Kong Jayceettes members are doing for a better Hong Kong. It is the driving force in both good times and bad times. When faced with harsh difficulties, we persevere with optimism, a can-do attitude and energetically overcome any challenges until a positive change is made to the society.

With this spirit, Jayceettes has organized various amazing projects throughout years. In 2013, I'm glad to see Jayceettes has launched a series of project which aligned with the United Nations Millennium Development Goals. This includes the UNMDG Kick-off cum Movie Screening which raise funds for UN Refugee Agency. It also includes Chinese alphabetical aerobics lessons to help ethnic minorities to learn Chinese, catwalk show across brands and nationalities and refugee run that simulate the experience of being displaced. All these projects demonstrate the spirit of the JCI Creed as it says "That the Brotherhood of man transcends the sovereignty of nations".

Last, I would like to represent JCI Hong Kong to thank JCI Hong Kong Jayceettes for holding the National Convention. This is the biggest occasion in 2013 that members from every chapter come together to share, to learn, to vote, to be awarded and to have fun. Your contribution is not only providing training opportunities to Jayceettes member but providing positive changes to over 450 delegates! So, please keep going and I look forward for more innovative promotion and exciting programs!

Senator Brian Kwan
NATIONAL ASSIGNED EXECUTIVE OFFICER

National Vice President

How hard women work nowadays is not a new topic. How women balance their work and life is a question ever being explored. Let us hear how three women from the medical sector, who work for many lives, treat their work. After reading their stories, we would learn that with certain attitudes of Hong Kong Spirit, work by no mean hinders one from enjoying life, but adds more meaning and fulfillment to it.

Stamina and Professionalism

Once upon a time of flu...

"For months, I worked from 9am to 9pm every day. None of us took a holiday. I just felt I should be there to take care of the patients and my fellow colleagues."

The recent invasion of H5N9 Influenza reminds us of the formidable SARS which hit the city in 2003. Miss Helena Li, who was among one of those battling with the bird flu in the frontline ten years ago, it harked back to more memories. Miss Li was the Nursing Officer of Tuen Mun Hospital during the SARS period. Hearing her sharing, we could not help but applause for the team spirit of Hong Kong medical workers. While the spotlight was mainly on the doctors who were widely reported to be fighting a hard battle, the contribution of nurses was scarcely reported. Should the dedication of these humble heroines, who could be even more susceptible to infection in prolonged contact with patients, be recognized?

"We had to do everything by ourselves with limited resources and manpower. One ward man was in charge of three rooms. Being the Nursing Officer, I had to coordinate with the nurses of the whole hospital and negotiate with my seniors. I also received training on taking care of SARS patients, and responsible for distributing Infirmary patients to other hospitals and allocating the sickbeds."

Wearing a mask was just the basic, Miss Li and her fellow nurses took the lead in introducing a handful of protective measures against infection in early 2003, a year which she described as 'a milestone' for the medical sector in Hong Kong. "Firefighting methods aren't as efficient as fire prevention measures. After Ching Ming Festival, we had a meeting on infection control. At lunch, we ate in one direction and avoiding talking to each other. We were on guard until cases reduced to zero on 1 June."

Asking if she ever had a moment of fear, Miss Li said light-heartedly. "We didn't have time to be afraid then. It was not until we looked back that we realized we were, indeed, in a fearful situation. It is fear for the unknown that was the most daunting."

As a keen observer of the conditions of medical facilities and technology in other countries, Miss Li noticed there were plenty of rooms for improvement in Hong Kong hospitals. For example, a hospital in Gansu Province was ahead of us in arranging on-suite rooms for patients. The drug cabinets in American hospitals were mechanically operated to avoid distributing drugs to the wrong patient. "Actually our medical system is quite good, but we should still pay attention to the development of other parts of the world, and keep on learning from others who are doing better than us. We are not the best."

Although Hong Kong has dedicated medical workers to be proud of, the medical system is not without flaws. "How can we combat with viruses of 21st century with the architecture of 19th century?" The circumspective nurse gave us some food for thought.

The retired nurse is still teaching and training nurses in Hong Kong and Macau, making herself a good example of hard work with modesty, the source of advancement.

A picture of the Crimean war and Florence Nightingale, which reflects Ms. Li's perspective of the unyielding spirit of a nurse

Empathy An Eye-Banker's Story

"Of course, emotional management is important at work, but I allow myself to cry. Crying doesn't mean you are not professional."

As the Manager of Eye Bank, Miss Catherine Wong worked as long as an I-banker (Investment Banker). And yet, her job could be even more demanding, as she is given no longer than 12 hours to collect a piece of fresh cornea from a deceased patient for transplantation purpose before it is decayed. "My job requires me to be 24-hour on call, and we have to work within a 12-hour span for each case."

Despite the irregular and long working hours, Miss Wong loves her job as it allows her to reach out to many families in need of help. "The satisfaction is tremendous when you know how you play a role in helping many patients who need cornea transplant to restore their sight. I treasure the long-term relationships I've built with donors' families over the year. I consider it my wealth," said Miss Wong with much passion.

Ms. Wong's sharing of her sense of mission towards organ transplantation, a sensitive topic in the Chinese society

As family members' consent is required for organ donation from the deceased patient, Miss Wong has to race against time to process the procedures of comforting patients' family, contacting with different departments including the hospital, the police and sometimes the media, before the cornea is safely transferred to the Eye Bank. Once a patient with the suitable medical conditions is located, his/her family is reached within four to six hours after death to seek their consents. "In fact, not all deceased patients are suitable; only 2-3% is. So I would tell the family of the deceased that it is a rare chance to have the cornea donated, like the patient's life is continuing in the other's body," Miss Wong said sincerely.

"The most challenging part of my job is to help devastated family members to cope with their emotions," she said empathetically. I understand their feelings. It is hard and painful to accept the fact that someone dear is dead. Once, I was in this position. I simply told my fellow family members, "You are not obliged to consent. My profession is not supposed to give you pressure."

Miss Wong admits her profession makes her shed many a tear of sympathy. She thinks it is not a shame to cry for what she has put her heart and soul in. Asking what her mission is, Miss Wong expresses her wish to serve as a coordinator between deceased patients and the recipients. She also hopes to give a sense of comfort to families in bereavement. Apart from going through all the required trainings, Miss Wong is never tired of deepening her professional knowledge. She was one of the very few who completed the International Master in Donation of Organ Tissues and cells for Transplantation in Barcelona*.

*A program created by the Institute for Life Long Learning at the University of Barcelona and the European Training Program on Organ Donation, which is part of the global efforts to enhance professional education and awareness of health care professionals whose exposure is limited to donation opportunities.

A Peaceful Heart (平常心) at Odds

Working as a Hobby

"Working is a hobby to me. Things don't work without hard work."

As a retired cardiologist, Dr. Lau Suet-ting deals with matters of the heart with an exceptional clear mind and professional working attitude.

"I am glad that I was born in a family which didn't instill this 'girls-can't-do-it' concept on my mind. I always believe men and women are equal, and I get along well with both males and females."

"My job required me to be always on call. My father was a policeman, so I was used to irregular working hours. To me, working is just an enjoyable activity and a part of life. My volunteer work included the vaccinating babies against Hepatitis B Virus in the rural areas in China. These villages used not to have fridges to keep vaccines, and iceboxes are needed to bring the vaccines into the villages. I regard my volunteer work as my hobby as it widened my perspective".

Mentioning about SARS, Dr. Lau revealed, "as a matter of fact, Hong Kong has a medical system that is better than many other places. We have a high rate of vaccination against infectious diseases. As a brand new infectious disease, SARS was a shock to the entire medical system and the community. At the peak time, there were more than 100 patients from Amoy Garden each day, so we had to make beds for them. Princess Margaret Hospital was designated exclusively for SARS patients. At that time I was working there. Within one week, we had to discharge more than 1,000 patients of other diseases and admit new SARS patients at the same time. The development was so rapid that we had to train personnel and allocate resources to fight the battle instantaneously'.

"Actually I was too focused on my work then that I had no thought of fear. I just did whatever necessary to protect myself. At work, I put on full gear of protective garments and masks. After work, I cleaned myself thoroughly. before I went home. Throughout the SARS period, we went to work every day. Some of my colleagues fell sick with fever but they returned to work as soon as they got well. In a turmoil, it was the onlookers who are fearful, but not those who keep struggling. The more one understands the situation, the less one will panic. With the discovery of the cause of SARS, we know exactly how to combat the SARS virus."

Dr. Lau shared her tips with us. "First, manage your time well by setting priorities. Second, be efficient. Third, be punctual. Don't be late and don't wait to act! Adequate preparation in advance is also important to save time. After all, it is hard work and your working attitude that matters. Things don't work without hard work and a heart at work. Always enjoy your work as if it were your hobby. It is crucial to understand your responsibilities too. I never put pressure on myself in an examination or situation. I just do my best to prepare for it. I am not responsible for marking it. Why should I worry about the results?"

Having heard the unknown stories of three dedicated professionals, maybe there are more for us to care about despite all the conflicts and fears in the society. Amidst all the hustle and bustle, uncertainties and doubts, it becomes easy to forget and difficult to remember the spirit of Hong Kong people, yet the three ladies reminded us that our attributes have never been lost even at the most stressful and desperate moments of our time. Let's have a better understanding of the unknown and reach out for a better world.

Dr. Lau's respectful dedication to her profession and voluntary work

Jaycettes First International Bonding Tour in 2013

During 13 January to 15 January 2013, we went to Manila to attend our sister chapter JCI Manila's 65th Induction and Turnover Ceremonies.

During the 3-day trip in Manila, both chapters shared a lot about the local economies, communities and ongoing projects. We had also met the other sister chapters and friends of JCI Manila such as President of JCI Seoul, NVP of JCI Malaysia and International Affairs Representatives of JCI Tokyo etc. We had also shared the latest Snapshots with them. It was really a great chance to learn about how the local chapters at different places around the world are helping young people to have positive change.

"I was honored to visit our Manila sister chapter JCI Manila. My-first-Manila-journey impressed me a lot and let me know how good hospitality can be. This bonding tour not only strengthened the linkage between JCI Hong Kong Jaycettes and JCI Manila internationally but also between me and JCI Hong Kong Jaycettes. It also let me know more about our fellow companions." shared by Moon Lau, our International Affairs Officer.

We had a great time with our friends from JCI Manila and visited the landmarks in Manila with special local food. Thanks again to JCI Manila for their hospitality, especially to President Jonas, VP Lloyd and Director Leo.

I am here to recommend all Jaycettes members to join forthcoming bonding tours. Don't miss the chance!

After the International Bonding Tour in January, one of the committee member of JCI Manila Chairman Edison came to visit us in Feb and Director Pat joined our UNMDG Movie Screening event in March as well. Thank you for your support.

Insight into Global Active Citizenship

By Winnie Ho

This is such a memorable 5-day journey! Vice President Wendy So and I attended the 2013 National Development Workshops in Beijing held by JCI Hong Kong between 12 to 16 April.

I appreciated the opportunity to learn from the renowned professors from the China Youth University for Political Sciences as well as over 40 JCI presidents and members from other chapters.

It was a journey of uncovering our roots and building the understanding of the modern day China. We had a packed schedule of workshops starting with Sino-foreign Economic Development, and Contemporary Chinese diplomacy; followed by Political &

Military Strategy in the Pan-Asia Region, and Chinese Political System. The workshops raised discussions around influence from QEs in the USA, Japan and the Euro zone crisis, to the recent social conflicts between people in HK and mainland China.

Our professors applied fair judgements towards the internal issues caused by the rapid economic growth in the last two decades, whilst providing an alternative perspective to understand the challenges faced by the government. It provoked us to think about our responsibilities as young leaders.

The highlight of the journey was to visit the National Committee of CPPCC and Hong Kong & Macau Affairs Office of the State Council. It was fascinating to visit the grand architecture and hear from senior leaders about their views of Hong Kong and the continuous support from China.

I am sure you won't be surprised that Vice President Wendy and I also took the opportunity to visit Beijing landmarks and indulged ourselves with lots of nice food and wine! If you want to know more about China and share this experience, don't miss the chance to join the journey next year.

Care & Dare
踏出融樂一大步

While Community Development ("CD") is well-known to be an area of opportunities of JCI, one may as well ask what Community Development exactly stands for when we are virtually connected as a global community. It is out of such eagerness to understand the world that we are living in, that Care & Dare emerges. It's an attitude, a positioning, the vision to discard conformity and reach out from a comfort zone to our talented non-Chinese peers sharing the same home with us.

UNMDG Kick-off cum Fund-raising Movie Screening of Desert Flower

On 31 March 2013, the kick-off heralded the start of a series of caring and daring actions to achieve the United Nations Millennium Development Goals ("UN MDGs") committed by 189 member nations of the United Nations, with a main theme of education for ethnic minorities and encouraging Hong Kong youngsters to re-examine the social conflicts in society in a civic responsible way. We were honored to have invited Hong Kong Red Swastika Society, United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, Caritas Community Centre, Aberdeen Caritas, The Cosmetic & Perfumery Association of Hong Kong Ltd. and UNESCO Hong Kong Association, sponsors and supporting organizations to officiate the kick-off ceremony.

The movie, which is about how a refugee struggles from darkness to light, reflects education and courageous initiatives as viable and sustainable empowerment of the refugees worldwide, and offer an actionable blueprint for JCI HK Jayceettes to go the extra mile, to go beyond from merely promoting a cultural exchange of food and gatherings to steering a path for a better and harmonious world surrounding us, as an international society where different cultures meet.

During the kick-off, each officiating guest held a flower and with a slight touch of the Cactaceae lamp together, the lamp was lit up, which symbolizes a hope lost is found, as well as the warmth and care that JCI HK Jayceettes aspires to deliver, not only to those most in need, but to those who are waiting only for an opportunity to unleash their talents, just as the heroine in the movie.

"This is the fourth consecutive year for JCI HK Jayceettes to make an impact according to UN MDGs. In the coming May to August, we hope to spread the message of social harmony through a series of events, and raise public awareness of the social and educational problems we are facing," said Ms. Pauline Lau, President of JCI HK Jayceettes.

As Project Chairman Constance Wong said, we should give ethnic minorities a chance to have roots grounded in Hong Kong. Let's give ourselves an opportunity too, shall we?

Let's Move...Learn to Teach Chinese in Motion!

"Dim Waang Syu Pit Naat...(點、橫、豎、撇、捺)" Jayceettes Made the First Move to Train How to Spell Chinese in Motion!

Have you ever imagined a Chinese character could be broken down into alphabets? The strokes "Dim Waang Syu Pit Naat..." could be spelt in motion, with a set of alphabetical aerobics? Never has learning Chinese been so much fun and easy for other ethnic groups who used to find reading Chinese characters as difficult as decoding hieroglyphs. The Let's Learn Chinese in Motion! co-organized by JCI HK Jayceettes and Caritas Community Centre - Aberdeen spanned from 13 April to 11 May aims to teach Chinese to other ethnic groups in an innovative way, thereby helping them to integrate in the community. To facilitate the teaching, volunteer tutors were given 2 training sessions in March. Over a course of 5 lessons, children of other ethnic groups paired up with their mothers to grasp the Chinese alphabets and the alphabetical aerobics. The last lesson was held successfully on 11 May to celebrate Mothers' Day with games and certificates presented. Nothing is more rewarding than seeing the bright smiles worn by our friends of other nationalities, who are bringing home not only heaps of gifts from us, but also the tremendous fun of learning our language. They truly enjoyed the lessons conducted and assisted by our dedicated volunteers!

"I am so happy to see these children enjoying themselves so much. Learning by alphabets really works for them!"
(Volunteer Josephine Cheung)

March Fellowship Gathering
23 March 2013
 Project Chairman: Denise Wu

Annyeonghaseyo (안녕하세요 Good day in Korean)! JCI ASPAC 2013 Gwangju Korean will be held from 13 to 16 June 2013 and the International Affairs Team held a monthly gathering in March to promote it.

It was a successful gathering filled with Korean Culture and Korean food sharing, and it received over 40 participants. The Korean Kimchi master not only taught the most traditional way to make kimchi, but also delivered local Korean culture and taught us some Korean Language. Everyone enjoyed so much in making their own kimchi by their hands from scratch.

Participants also enjoyed dressing up in Korean lady's traditional costume and brought home their own hand-made Kimchi!

Korea Tourism Organization was very supportive and it gave out some Korea posters and information booklets, skin care products and lend us the costume. Gamsahabnida (감사합니다 thank you very much in Korean)!

Let's enjoy our every moment in Jayceettes, and we wish all members a wonderful experience at the JCI ASPAC 2013 Gwangju Korea. See you in Gwangju.

Tips that You Just Cannot Miss for Leading the Team

Smart Kits for OC

Each organizing committee member will receive a handy SMART KIT prepared by LD team at the first OC meeting. Aimed at providing “on-the-project” trainings, supervising officers will go through the smart kits at the first meeting and refresh OC members’ memories on parliamentary procedures & protocols, sponsors and financial management concept and CD Cycle before doing projects. Also sample documents will be provided for their reference.

WHAT'S NEXT? CONNECTED IN THE CLOUDS

Finding it difficult to create an online enrollment form? Want to handle registration in a smarter way or sharing a 20mb video? Dropbox and Google Drive will help you through!

Be Equipped - Softwares for Efficient Collaboration Series

LD team organized a series of mini workshop on computer software and online tools. Our first Workshop of "Be Equipped" - Softwares for Efficient Collaboration Series was successfully held on 12 March 2013. In the 2-hour workshop, participants learnt basic skills and knowledge of two popular file-sharing softwares: Dropbox and Google Drive. We received very positive feedbacks, thanks to the support of all members and especially to Eva Lum, a professional and experienced trainer, who helped teaching participants use of these two softwares.

Also, as announced earlier, members who previously completed the survey prepared by LD team and attended our first workshop session will have a chance to get into lucky draws during our workshops. Our lucky winner brought home with her an 8GB USB stick! Congratulations again!
